S.S.F. Reorganizes, Creates Ecology Unit

A drastic change has been made in South San Francisco's government.

A private engineering firm as of Friday began operating within the city as an Ecological Development Department, supplying its own city hall-based director.

The firm is VTN Bay Area Inc., a nationwide organization with Bay Area offices at San Jose, Half Moon Bay and South San Francisco at 405 Grand Avenue. It claims a combined staff of 49 engineers, architects, economists, planners and surveyors at these locations.

Related Stories Inside

South San Francisco's new Ecological Development Department is headed by VTN's 30-year-old Bay Area Vice President Fred Hull, a registered civil engineer who also will act in the capacity of city engineer. Hull will occupy an office at city hall for at least a year, he said.

According to City Manager Gale Dreisbach, the city is paying a $31,140 maximum administrative fee, based on 40 hours a week for half a year and 20 hours a week for the second six months of the year, for Hull's services. This figure is based on VTN's rates.

All other costs, such as for engineering work, will be contracted out at prevailing rates.

The new department combines under the one head the disciplines of 10 separate divisions. These include planning, landscape, engineering, parks, building, recreation, streets, marina, sanitation and garage.

The city's engineering depart ment was totally abolished.

City Engineer Lou Goss, 62, and with 19 years city service, has retired effective October 1. He has been offered a job with VTN as a consultant, according to Hull.

Five of the other seven employes within the engineering department were given 30 days severance and an invitation to submit resumes for employment with VTN.

Assistant City Manager Larry Ross has been named Assistant Director of the Ecological Development Department, and was granted a $2,000 annual raise, along with the title change, said Dreisbach.

The end objectives, according to Dreisbach, are tighter supervision, greater efficiency, more responsiveness, quicker responses and less cost to the city.

"It will take years to effectuate a total savings," said Dreisbach. "Rough figures would indicate the optimum of $400,000 annually. I don't expect it to reach the optimum because it's a governmental agency."

Dreisbach pointed out that the contract with VTN requires they serve the city for a year. He said the city, however, may rid itself of VTN with 30 days notice.

"I believe the city has a bargain," said Dreisbach. "It's not boxed in."

Hull said VTN's initial efforts will be a study of the structures of the 10 new divisions within the Ecological Development Department. He said he has some tentative programs to be entered into, but had no listing of them.

High School Students Probe D.C. Attitudes

Students in Jefferson High School's Community Environmental Education Program have completed a probe of Daly City's attitudes.

The door to door survey, given to a random sample of 200 Daly City residents, reveals a broad range of opinions concerning urban issues.

The strongest feeling which the young polsters uncovered was a definitely negative attitude toward proposed redevelopment.

The students conducting the survey are a part of the Environmental Education Program — a semester long series of urban and outdoor projects sponsored by the federal government. The program is just finishing its first year.

The survey was designed to serve three purposes: to identify problems in Daly City for later work projects; to give students an active role in changing their community, and to make the community aware of the results.

To achieve a valid survey, students, with the help of local political scientists and the Sierra Club, used techniques proven by professional pollsters. The city was divided into 14 districts of 7 block areas. In each area students, with the help of the Daly City Jaycees, sampled a one block strip — going to every seventh house. On this basis the results of their 200 surveys represent the entire community's views.

GAIL SEARS was one of the Jefferson High School students participating in the probe of Daly City citizen attitudes.

Survey questions focused on transportation, education, sanitation, taxes, recreation, social services, city planning, and deteriorating neighborhoods.

Here are some of the attitudes that the survey reflects:

Does the public transportation service in Daly City adequately fulfill your needs?

Yes: 51 percent; No: 30 percent.

From your point of view are the present fire and police departments adequate for your needs in Daly City?

Yes: 72 percent; No: 17 percent.

Do you think the recreational facilities in your area are sufficient enough for your needs?

Yes: 40 percent; No: 60 percent.

Would you be willing to spend more tax money on education?

Yes: 45 percent; No: 48 percent.

Do you think your local taxes are used effectively?

Yes: 16 percent; No: 62 percent.

Based on your personal observations are you satisfied with the city planning of Daly City?

Yes: 32 percent; No: 50 percent.

D.C. Project Subject of More Talks

Members of the Daly City Redevelopment Board and staff met with an overflow audience at the House of Parties hall Wednesday to answer questions concerning the project now under study.

Most persons asking questions of the panel, which included Mayor Bernard J. Lycett, Councilman McRobert Stewart, City Manager David Rowe and staff planner Fred DeJarlais, were pessimistic in their views on redevelopment.

It was the redevelopment agency's first attempt at going into the target area for talks with citizens.

Several persons attending the meeting later hailed it as "a success."

Most felt the agency was trying to carry out a difficult task of public relations with the people of the area and that it had made some important strides forward in this field since the agency's inception late last year.

But the matter of money for their existing homes and property, versus costs of moving into new homes elsewhere, most concerned the people.

Several of the "older" Daly City citizens said they were "perfectly happy" with their present homes and did not want redevelopment in their area.

Daly City Escapee Draws

One of the nine prisoners who escaped from the county jail in Redwood City March 22, Vincent A. Smith, of Daly City, was sentenced to state prison Thursday by Superior Court Judge W. Hartley.

Smith, who was re-captured with another escapee, Ernest D. Lakey, 34, in Southgate near Los Angeles May 16, had been accidentally let out of the Redwood City jail late last year and was re-captured before his second escape.

Judge Hartley ordered that Smith, 31, serve the two terms consecutively. The robbery charge caries a minimum sentence of five years and the escape charge six months.

Lakey, who suffered a fractured jaw in a struggle with police in the Southern California city, has not yet been returned to Redwood City.

Smith will be sent to the State Department of Correction's facility at Vacaville for evaluation and determination as to what prison he will be assigned.

Four of the nine escapees still remain at large, and Sheriff Earl B. Whitmore has pledged he will not have his hair cut until all are back in custody.

They are Joseph B. Mora, who was on trial for murdering a teenage girl and who was erroneously believed dead in Mexico; John S. Szymkiewicz, charged with armed robbery; William W. Stabler, charged with attempted murder, assault with a deadly weapon and armed robbery, and William Marchailette, charged with burglary, possession of stolen property, trespassing and escape.

Darcie Rowe

Maria Sarantes

Karen Shepherd

Robin Soss

Sandra Wilson

Eight girls are competing for the title of Miss Millbrae, to be chosen June 10 in a pageant at Capuchino High School auditorium.

The contest is sponsored by the Millbrae Chamber of Commerce and is sponsored by the City of Millbrae.

Its winner will represent the city in San Mateo County's "Fiesta Dream Girl" contest and will receive a trip for two to Hawaii with her Miss Millbrae crown.

According to Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Bob DeFelice, all the girls this year are students at Capuchino High School, except one CSM student.

Last hear, he said, most of the contestants were from Mills High. DeFelice said this has occurred by coincidence, and that next year the chamber will be working harder to insure a cross-section of the city young beauties.

Contestants are:

Crystal Chalmers, 17, 325 San Jose Avenue, a junior, blue-eyed blonde who intends to be a physical therapist;

Carol Junkin, 17, 1119 Elmwood Avenue, a junior, hazel-eyed blonde who wants to be an elementary school teacher;

Stephanie Pick, 17, 401 Richmond Drive, a senior, hazel-eyed brunette who wants to be a probation officer;

Darcie Rowe, 17, 825 Robin Lane, a senior, brown-eyed blonde who wants to be a social worker specializing in children;

Maria Sarantes, 17, 842 Crestview Drive, a senior with red hair and brown eyes who wants to attend business college and become an executive secretary or stewardess;

Karen Shepherd, 17, 1220 Tuolumne Road, a senior with blue eyes and blonde hair who plans to be a beautician;

Robin Soss, 17, 411 Paramount Drive, a senior with brown hair and eyes who wants to be a dietition;

Sandra Wilson, 19, a College of San Mateo sophomore with brown hair and brown eyes who is studying pre-veterinary medicine.

Miss Millbrae of 1971 will be on hand to crown the new queen and radio personality Terry McGovern will be master of ceremonies.

Mills High School drama instructor Roy Casstevens will direct the production.

Tickets may be obtained from Millbrae merchants or from the Millbrae Chamber of Commerce.

S.S.F. Aide Named Assistant Manager

South San Francisco's "free" city manager intern Henry Otto has been promoted to assistant city manager as a result of the city's departmental reorganization.

City Manager Gale Dreisbach named Otto, a retired Oakland motorcycle policeman, to the post, which was vacated when Larry Ross was shifted to assistant director of the newly formed Department of Ecological Development.

Meanwhile, Administrative Assistant Jack Meline, who holds a master's degree in public administration and has four years of municipal experience, has suddenly "chosen to find other employment."

Otto, a personal friend of Dreisbach, was brought to the city to work as a city manager researcher, budget management coordinator and editor of a city newsletter, according to the 1971-72 budget proposal that created the position.

Technically listed as city manager intern it was to be filled on a yearly basis. The city reportedly received numerous applications from individuals qualified with related education and background.

Driesbach, however, said he brought Otto in as an opportunity for the city to obtain free services for the city, for at least a year. He said that if Otto did not work out he could easily be replaced.

Otto presently is unable to accept a salary because he is receving compensation resulting from a hand injury as an Oakland officer. That forced his resignation after nearly 20 years of service.

The 1972-73 budget retains a position for Otto and earmarks a salary for him from February of 1973 to the end of that fiscal year.

At the same time the city manager intern position was approved by the council last year, new positions of deputy city attorney and administrative assistant were added.

Deputy City Attorney John Shaw was hired to do the majority of City Attorney John Noonan's research, and represent the city in court.

At the city's public study session of the 1972-73 budget held recently the question was raised as to the validity of the city having two full-time city attorneys.

Dreisbach apparently convinced the council that two are needed, at least at the present time. He said the position would be studied thoroughly by next year.

The position of administrative assistant was created for the handling of all purchasing for the city, plus being the city manager's representative on the personnel board.

This efficiency and streamlining plan of Dreisbach's in the 1971-72 budget also included the formation of a computerized finance division, which meant the hiring of a finance officer.

At the recent Saturday 1972-73 budget study session, Dreisbach said the reason he had not hired the finance officer was "because things were moving too fast." He also said something else, which indicated his plan for the administrative assistant post, and apparently was a slip of the tongue. Because when questioned further by councilmen he said he would prefer discussing it in executive session.

S.S.F. Adopts Budget of $6 Million

South San Francisco councilmen on Monday adopted the city's $6-million operating budget for the 1972-1973 fiscal year.

Councilmen held one day-long public hearing on the city's budget several weeks ago.

Only one item appears of any apparent concern. It has to do with the city's annual payment of $26,400 to the South San Francisco Scavenger Company for monthly pickup of tree clippings and lawn cuttings.

After much discussion initiated by Councilman Bill Borba, who wanted the total amount kept intact, it was decided to budget $6,600 for a three-month period. During this time a survey will be taken to see how many residents are actually utilizing the service.

If it is determined that only a few are using the service, which is paid from the taxes of all the people, the council's intention is to do away with the service, making those individuals who want the service to pay for it themselves.

Regardless, at this time there still is $5,000 budgeted for an annual summer cleanup of tree and grass debris.

Bus Permit Approved by SSF Council

South San Francisco councilmen, on a 3-2 vote, Monday conditionally approved a passenger bus permit for resident Florentino Rosas to operate three buses within city limits.

Rosas, of 441 Alta Vista Drive, was not at the meeting. His attorney, David Friedenberg, made the pitch for the permit and promised that his client would abide by any and all conditions.

The conditions are yet to be established by the city staff. The matter will again come before the council for final approval.

Councilmen Bill Borba and Patrick Ahern cast the dissenting votes, saying they did not have enough information regarding the proposed service.

Friedenberg reiterated that the permit was only being granted conditionally, and if the conditions the city wishes to place on the applicant are not met, the final permit will not be issued.

Councilman Gordon T. Bobblitt, who made the motion to approve a conditional permit, said:

"The gamble is all the applicant's. What is the city losing? Hopefully it's gainng someone who can operate a bus system."

Resident Bob Albright chided Borba and Ahern's stand. He reminded Councilman Ahern about how he had been emphatically for "private enterprise" when an oil company wanted to build another service station in Westborough, a station the residents emphatically did not want. It was voted in.

Bruno Planners Deny Rezoning

A drive by Planning Commissioner Leon Miller to slow down the population growth of San Bruno brought out a full house to Monday night's planning commission but failed to yield any results.

Miller's drive took the form of a series of rezonings of various properties to lower densities.

The greatest controversy — which helped drag the meeting out to almost midnight — took place over the proposed rezoning of a 4.75-acre hillside overlooking Freeway 280 from R-3, apartments, to R-1D, planned single family.

Commissioners finally voted 3-2 to deny the rezoning that the Planning Commission itself had initiated. Only Miller and Lynn Buxton voted for the rezoning.

The site, located at the end of London Court, is adjacent to Skyline Townhouses and seven lots on Piedmont, as well as to Crestmoor School. A surprise letter of protest was received from the San Mateo Junior College District Foundation, a body led by a board composed of the trustees and top administration of the college district. A .4 interest in the property had been donated to the foundation; another portion was given to the San Mateo Union High School District.

The chief objector to the proposed rezoning was the land developer George W. Williams.

He said the site, with spectacular views, lends itself to high-grade development as a single unit. Cutting it up into 6,000-square-foot lots for single home development would seriously scar the hillside, he declared. Development would not impair views of present homeowners, most of whom would not even see it. It would lend itself, however, to a stepdown or cluster development, he suggested. He was waiting until present projects under construction are filled before developing, and so had no solid plans for development at the present time.

He called the planning commission proposal confiscatory, arbitrary and an attack on private property.

"If a planning commission started rezoning downward any piece of property it wants to, no one would know from one day to the next how much you can build on a piece of property," he complained.

Miller insisted that he was merely talking about the best use of property.

"I don't think we're being arbitrary," he declared. "There has been a great concern over density. I think we should direct the course of San Bruno. He could still come forth with a pleasing development. The only question is that of profit, and that's no concern of ours."

Deputy City Attorney Dermot Fitzgerald insisted that profit did enter in a court's determination of how arbitrary a zoning is. That occasioned a new argument between he and Miller, who felt that planners should not concern themselves with financial aspects of developing.

"We shouldn't have to guarantee a developer his profit," he declared.

"If we don't set a population goal, we are not really planning," Miller added. He explained that current big apartment projects threaten to send San Bruno past its ideal goal of a population of 50,000 persons.

Numerous objections were voiced by homeowners living on London Court and on Piedmont, to the possibility of apartment development. Objections were mainly on the grounds of view obstruction and increased traffic through their streets.

Williams retorted that they both received their present zonings together, some nine years ago, and that he had as much right to use his property as they did theirs.

When the commission voted to deny the rezoning, Miller asked:

"My only question is why did we bring this to a public hearing?

The other two major rezonings pushed by Miller were quickly taken care of; the Planning Commission voted to hold them over to the July 5 meeting.

They both involved property acquired by the State Division of Highways, for possible highway use. Miller wanted the land rezoned to the classification he had first proposed, the O zone. this zoning would ban almost any building on the land, allowing only for open uses and such building that goes along with such uses, such as golf pro shops and barns.

One site in question was the Crestmoor Canyon, half of which is owned by the Division of Highways for extension of Freeway 380, and the other half owned by the city, for future park use. The other land consists of a strip along both sides of Skyline Boulevard, acquired for possible widening of Skyline and for interchanges.

Miller explained that the zoning will have no effect upon highway plans. Should the Division of Highways not go through with these plans, however, and try to sell the land, they would not be able to sell to a developer.

Miller added that, by law, the planners must develop an open space program this year. Such a rezoning would be the first step.

City Manager Gerald Minford asked the commission to keep the hearing open.

"We have some legal problems to work out," he explained. He indicated that if 380 were abandoned, and the state were unable to sell its land because of an O zoning, then the city might be liable for the cost of the land. He also indicated that the city staff would try to work out something that would be agreeable with the Division of Highways.

With this brief explanation, the planners voted unanimously to hold over the two rezonings.

any influence in decisions that concern your community?

Yes: 28 percent; No: 53 percent.

Students found the strongest reaction to their questions about the redevelopment proposed in the area around the BART Station.

Forty-seven percent of the residents interviewed said they believed Old Daly City had been adequately planned to prevent deterioration. And when the residents interviewed were asked what kind of development would be favorable only 3 percent wanted massive relocation to make way for construction.

Students decided that the redevelopment issue demanded more study. They began making videotape interviews of merchants and residents in the planned redevelopment areas. At the same time, they set up meetings with representatives of the Daly City Re-Development Agency and the Citizens Advisory Board.

Major Street Program Is Sought

A major street improvement program for Pacifica was unveiled for council members at a Thursday night budget session.

City Engineer Dwight French said the Department of Public Works has already made contacts with homeowners on Stanley and Paloma Avenues and plans to take the "selling" into Rockaway next.

"The time spent maintaining dirt streets is a waste of money," said French. He said that money should be spent for constructive purposes, like blacktop and paving instead of constantly maintaining dirt streets.

Asked by Councilman Stan Farber whether French was taking into account "the people problem," the city engineer replied, "Curb, gutter and sidewalks are not an engineering problem. It's a sales problem."

French said he believes his department has an acceptable sales package.

"We want to go out into the community and sell it," he said. "Within a year you can have a program going that will sell itself and carry itself."

French said he plans to bring some specific proposals before the council on Monday night.

City Manager Jim Swayne's budget message also made reference to the street improvement program. He said it was a continuation of the two-year $50,000 slurry seal program previously approved by the council.

"The city has 12.5 miles of dirt or gravel streets and 18 miles of very sub-standard streets," said Swayne.

"The cost of bringing these streets up to an acceptable standard will be in the range of $6 million, and if we are to see any solution to this problem it will be necessary to initiate a positive program that can be accepted by the property owners as well as the city.

"The city should contribute time, effort and money to the projects to accomplish street improvements for a maximum cost to the citizen of $10 per front foot, or in terms of a 50-foot lot, $500," recommended Swayne.

To get the program under way, Swayne recommended that all property owners on streets not meeting council standards be assessed for improvements.

He said the council should adopt a policy of contribution for assessments with a maximum of $10 a foot and the city will contribute time or money on a first-come, first-served basis.

Swayne also recommended that the city staff be instructed to conduct an opinion poll to determine interest in the assessment district procedure.

According to Swayne there is $100,000 presently in the city budget to use as "seed money" to begin the project.

Five Surprised by Job Loss

When South San Francisco's Assistant City Engineer Ray Maxwell went to work Friday morning he had no idea he would be seeking a new job Friday night.

But today he is without work, replaced by innovation. So are four of his co-workers, for whom Maxwell expresses more concern than for himself.

"They don't have the credentials to hang on the wall," said the 35-year-old Maxwell. "I'm young enough, and can find another job."

Maxwell, three years with the city, and before that with PG&E also holds a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from the University of California at Berkeley and is working on a master's in public works administration at the University of Santa Clara.

In addition, he is a registered engineer.

But his co-workers, who also got the news during a staff meeting Friday that they were being phased out immediately because a private firm was taking over, do not have that background.

Ray Chan, Watt Tann, Al Kelley and Tom Moore, like Maxwell, were, however, assured that if they submitted applications to VTN they would have a good chance for a position.

Fred Hull, VTN's Bay Area vice president and now South San Francisco's city engineer and director of the Department of Ecological Development that replaced the city's engineering department, promised that.

"There is every reason to believe these men can be used under different types of direction on different disciplines," said Hull.

City Manager Gale Dreisbach said the five "accepted it like gentlemen. But if asked, they would be upset. I would be myself. "I don't feel they are hurt. VTN is in a better position to pay higher salaries than this city."

Maxwell happened to be the only one available at the time to be asked how he felt.

"I'm not bitter," he said. "I smelled something. But I didn't know it would be this." Maxwell said he thought maybe a division of engineering would be created with a "true" public works department under it.

"My first thought was what do I do next, about my family, and putting bread on the table." Maxwell, who bought a house and moved to South San Francisco "as a condition of employment" has a wife and three children, 8, 4 and 3, "all very hungry."

Maxwell said he thinks Dreisbach's proposal is a progressive move for the city, designed to save money. "But the net effect will be a cutdown in services," predicted Maxwell. "We now perform services that a consulting service can't."

Asked if he intended to submit an application to VTN, Maxwell said:

"I don't know. I'm going to take a few weeks off and think about it, look around. Maybe I'll go back to Philadelphia, or wherever the market demand is."

Then he sat back in his chair, probably for the last time, and said: "When I reflect on it, I question the meaning of civil service. Is there really civil service? Is there job security?"

Parks Plan Is Debated in South San Francisco

Planner and developer clashed Wednesday over South San Francisco's general plan open space element.

Saying the proposed open space element causes a minimum amount of hardship to both private enterprise and the public, City Planner Dan Pass added that "the plan calls for sacrifice by all—private developers included."

Contractor Buzz Haskins, claiming to represent various developers and property owners in the city's industrial park responded, "They call that blackmail."

Haskins said he was there to protest the general plan concept because "it is a plan conceived by a planner that takes in a vast portion of very valuable industrial area." The particular area of concern is near the marina and planned as a Shoreline Regional Park.

The open space element, like the general plan's seismic safety element, has been unanimously approved by the city's planning commissioners.

State law requires the adoption of an open space element to the general plan by June 30. Then within a year, according to Pass, an open space zoning ordinance must be adopted.

The open space element adoption by itself simply would be a statement of policy intent. It is that later zoning ordinance that appears to have various developers and property owners concerned. They feel property zoned "open space" would allow only minimal developments, particularly the industrial areas near the proposed Shoreline Regional Park.

Pass, however, contended there would be "jackpot zoning" as far as those property owners are concerned. According to Pass, under the zoning (M2H) almost anything can be built. This could include ship and small boat repair shops, motels and chandleries.

The main recreational area would be about 50 acres now owned by the city.

Councilman Bill Borba said that "if the city is going into the development business it ought to start with downtown Grand Avenue."

According to Pass, the city now has approximately 200 acres in parks. This includes about 55 acres of common greens and undeveloped areas. In addition to the proposed Shoreline Regional Park, two other parks of a regional nature are proposed.

One is San Bruno Mountain, for which Pass said a 1,250-acre area "close to what Crocker now proposes" is proposed in the city's open space element. Development of the mountain may not be under South San Francisco's jurisdiction, however.

The third proposed regional park is the property of the California Golf and Country Club, which is likely to remain in that use. But open space zoning would mean it could not some day be developed with apartments.

"This plan is not a bonanza. It is an invitation to sacrifice," said Pass.

Haskins said he wanted the option to develop his land as he saw fit. Pass pointed out that the Shoreline Regional Park with which Haskins was concerned did not include any Haskins property.

"There's nothing (in the open space element) that enhances the development of the industrial area," said Haskins. He added that things should be left alone until expansion becomes necessary "for the benefit of society." That expansion, according to Haskin's viewpoint, would be done with more bay fill.

"The plan says give land for a regional park and if you don't, we (the city) won't let you do anything with your land. Not enough thought and study by owners was included in that plan," said Haskins. "The owners of the land were not even consulted."

Councilman Gordon T. Boblitt pointed out several areas that had recently been filled. He noted that because of necessary time for proper compaction building would be prohibitive and a regional park as suggested would be an ideal use.

S.S.F. Earthquake Studies Criticized

By BOB PETERSON

Two specific criticisms emerged from a Wednesday night review of South San Francisco's seismic safety element to the city's general plan.

One was that too much emphasis is placed on potential hazards of the San Andreas Fault that runs thorugh the Westborough area.

The other was that when "experts" say that fill land is more susceptible to damage from earthquakes they fail to add that modern engineering techniques are applied to counter this problem.

The seismic safety element of the general plan was being reviewed to meet state requirements that all city general plans have such elements to make people aware of geological hazards.

South San Francisco's subdivision ordinance specifies that a geological report is required in any area the city engineer determines to be one of known geological hazards.

The rift (break) zone of the San Andreas Fault which produced the 1906 earthquake bisects the Westborough West Park neighborhood. Other inactive but potentially hazardous faults are contained in the valley of Colma Creek and the southwest boundary of San Bruno Mountain.

John Cummings, professor of geology at Hayward State College and South San Francisco's "Town Geologist," said "too much concern is given to Westborough."

According to Cummings, the Westborough area is no more susceptible (or no safer) than any other residential area to a major earthquake.

He noted that a quake from the Hayward Fault or the Calaveras Fault could cause as much damage to Westborough as an eruption of the San Andreas Fault.

Westborough developer Hank Richman said that law requires he notify buyers of the geological hazards of the area. "I've sold 930 homes in two years to people who have read that," he said.

Geologist Phil Burkland with Gribaldo, Jones and Associates said that his firm has identified a 50-foot band in Westborough that is the San Andreas Fault. Most of the fault traces are now covered with fill, it was pointed out.

In any case, the city is not liable for buildings in the area in case of earthquake, Mayor Frank Mammini was told by City Attorney John Noonan.

"A great deal can be avoided by knowing the problems and planning accordingly," said Cummings. "This knowledge and planning is really rather cheap insurance."

Comments that fill areas tend to react more violently was questioned by Councilman Patrick Ahern and challenged by Realtor Lou Poletti.

Ahern said he wanted proof "that says a structure is in more trouble on filled land than on hard soil."

S.S.F. May Link to Bay Water Agency

It is very likely that South San Francisco will join the Peninsula Water Agency.

Councilmen in a study session last week were asked to contribute financially toward an effort now progressing to seek federal funding for alternatives to relying on water purchases from San Francisco's Hetch Hetchy system.

The request to join the group of Peninsula-based water agencies was made by engineer Bill Chapman of the South San Francisco firm of Kirker and Chapman.

Kirker and Chapman is one of three firms—including Wilsey and Ham and Jenks and Adamson—presently working out preliminaries to getting a federal grant.

Chapman acknowledged that South San Francisco doesn't own or operate its own water facility, but it, like others ultimately relying on supplies only from San Francisco one day may find themselves without water.

"The water level is going down," warned Chapman. "Between 10 and 15 years we may find ourselves without water in the ground."

Chapman said there is a good possibility of obtaining a federal grant through housing and urban development if a political entity (preferably San Mateo County) would administer the funding.

The engineer said that Calaveras County has indicated an interest in selling water. Another possibility is the South Bay Aqueduct in San Jose, according to Chapman, who pointed out the need for a source to compete with San Francisco.

The Peninsula Water Agency now primarily functions as a representative of the various independent agencies in opposing water rate increases of supplier San Francisco.

"We're only treating the symptoms when we fight these rate increases," said Chapman.

To illustrate his point, Chapman cited Daly City (which presently has its own wells) as an example. "If Daly City purchased solely from San Francisco (as South San Francisco eventually may have to do) the cost would be $225,000 annually," said Chapman.

According to Chapman federal funding would allow a master plan study of water needs now and in the future for the county.

He said that South San Francisco, which would have to put up about $250 for the initial grant application efforts, could bow out at any time. Chapman admitted there would be "millions of dollars in pipelines" needed to transport water from other sources.

San Bruno Manager Says City Cannot Cut Tax Rate Despite Increased Revenues

By JACK BIK

City Manager Gerald Minford last week explained to the San Bruno City Council why even with sharp increases in assessed valuation and in sales tax revenues, the city still can not cut its tax rate this coming fiscal year.

It was the first in a series of budget sessions being held by the council. A second one, to discuss police, parks and recreation, was scheduled for Wednesday night, with a third possibly later on this week. A daytime Saturday session was also suggested.

Councilmen also discussed possible manpower increases in the fire department. Much to the displeasure of Mayor George Corey, they decided to make no decisions on manpower requests until they review all the budget.

Corey urged the council to "make decisions as you go along — then we can always go back and change it. This way, however, we'd be moving along."

Councilman Neil Christal, however, wanted to "wait until we can see the pattern." John Barnard and Margaret Kozkowski agreed with Christal, and Tony Governale was not present.

The proposed budget showed a cut in the general fund tax rate of almost a half-cent, to 64.14 cents per $100 valuation; a cut in the park and recreation fund of 4.33 cents to 36.82 cents, and a reduction in the minimum amount needed to cover the retirement fund, of .8 of a cent to 16.73 cents.

However, he explained to the council, although the 16.73 cents would raise the $174,000 the retirement fund is expected to cost for the year, sound business practice would demand an additional $58,000 needed to cover the "dry period" deficit.

To explain the situation, he enlisted the aid of City Accountant Bob Bodeman. Using a new technique in city budget presentation, the two added up the spending and income for each month to produce a series of "cash flow" charts.

The charts illustrated Minford's point that "only 8 per cent of the revenue comes in from July up to December." Thus, the city runs low in cash on hand by December 1.

The cash flow chart for the general fund showed that with a 1972-73 income of $2,752,660, and a starting balance on July 1 of $710,000, the city ends the month of November with only $51,048 on hand. Monthly expenses, meanwhile, range from $196,000 to $269,221. During December, however, $509,101 in taxes is expected to enrich city coffers, barely in time.

The critical cash flow chart, however was for the retirement trust fund, with a $912,000 budget. Based on the last tax rate of 17.54 cents, this fund would start off with a $5,000 balance, would go in the red the following month, peaking at a $64,492 deficit on December 1. The fund would then go in the red again in February, peaking at a $48,540 deficit in May. By the end of June 1973, it would be back almost where it began, with a $6,000 balance.

Even Minford's proposed tax hike to 22.31 cents would do little to ease this deficit, which would peak at $60,041 by December 1. However, by the end of June, 1973, there would be a $58,000 balance, which would enable the retirement fund to be operated on a sound business basis during the 1973-74 fiscal year, and afterwards.

The deficit is currently handled by juggling of funds, Minford explained. Although it is possible to do so again, he admitted, it is a poor business practice.

State Awards Safety Grant To Pacifica

Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan and State Sen. Arlen F. Gregorio today jointly announced the approval of an $88,737.00 traffic safety grant for Pacifica. This is the fifth such award to be made to the city under Gov. Ronald Reagan's California Traffic Safety Program.

State Director of the governor's Office of Traffic Safety, William F. Scheuermann Jr., stated that "this grant will enable the city to establish a sleective traffic enforcement team dedicated to the reduction of traffic violations and accidents. The team will coordinate their enforcement activity with the assistance of the local administration, court, engineering, and educational personnel."

The traffic safety project will be directed by the city's chief of police, Mel Nelson, and will become an integral part of the state-wide program to reduce deaths, injuries and property damage resulting from traffic accidents.

The Pacifica project is being made possible through the coordinated efforts of the governor's Office of Traffic Safety and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Pacifica Budget: May Hold Rate

Pacifica's council Thursday took its first official look at that city's $3 million operating budget for 1972-73.

The council reviewed the Public Works Department budget, which accounts for almost one-third of the operating total—$1,005,852.

A second public session is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Terra Nova High School cafetorium to review the remaining city departmental budgets.

In his budget message, City Manager Jim Swayne said:

"This budget is based on continuing existing programs at the same or a lower level than in preceding years. It is a bare bones proposal."

Assuming general pay increases are held to a minimum and Emergency Employment Act money is available for the entire year to pay for two previously approved firefighter positions, it was indicated that the present tax rate of $2.29 for each $100 of assessed property valuation can be retained. No new positions are requested.

Swayne noted that the capital improvement needs of the city continue to be severe and largely unmet. These include a new city hall and police facility, the corporation yard re-location, the Linda Mar fire station, storm and sewage trunk line construction and street construction.

It was noted in Swayne's message that the council has already taken major steps toward meeting capital needs by adopting the capital improvement fee ordinance, now the subject of a lawsuit, and by approving $6 million in a new sewage treatment facility now being built.

Swayne proposed that if federal revenue sharing is adopted the funds be allocated to capital outlay. He also suggested that sales tax revenues from gasoline sales go to capital improvements.

"The work of the Capital Improvments Citizens' Committee continues to be of highest priority and the council should be prepared to review and adopt their final report during the 1972-73 fiscal year," said Swayne.

According to Swayne there is presently a shortage of manpower in the building department for performing building inspections.

He said that on Monday, for example, there were 40 calls for inspections. Swayne said the number of calls were in direct proportion to the extensive building taking place in the city. He predicted this building growth would subside in another six months.

Bruno Gets Grant

San Bruno's community service officer program has received a second-year grant of $22,223 from California Council on Criminal Justice.

The grant, directed toward improving police and the community's understanding of each other, is contingent upon completion of legal arrangements between the Council and San Bruno authorities.

The grant was announced by Robert H. Lawson, executive director of the council staff in Sacramento. The council, headed by Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, is the state planning agency responsible for administering and coordinating federal anti-crime programs, including those under the Omnibus Crime Control Act.

One of the objectives of the program is to increase the opportunity for minority group members to serve in a police agency. Each of the six participants work 20 hours a week performing such nonhazardous polic duties as traffic direction, parking enforcement, speaking at schools and service clubs, and participation in "rap" sessions at high schools and Skyline College.

Each community service officer must be between the ages of 17 and 21 and each is selected on the basis of honesty, intelligence, motivation, and a tested capacity to advance their education and understanding of the San Bruno community.

Captain William Cann of the San Bruno Police Department is in charge of the program.

THE GERALD LANGENEGGERS
(Virginia Prichard)

A tour of the Mother Lode Country and Lake Tahoe followed the marriage of Gerald Langenegger and his bride, the former Virginia Margarita Prichard, who are now living in Pacifica.

The couple was married at Holy Angels Catholic Church in Daly City and received felicitations after the service at the New Southern Restaurant in South San Francisco.

Virginia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Prichard of Dallas, Tex., former Peninsula residents. She attended Westmoor High School and is now employed in South San Francisco.

Virginia said her vows in a floor length white chiffon gown styled with a green bodice. Mrs. Carrie Rousseu of South San Francisco, the maid of honor, and Melody Blakeley of Daly City, the bridesmaid, were both dressed in floor length yellow crepe costumes trimmed with yellow and white daisies. A miniature version of their outfits was worn by Vicki Prichard, the flower girl for her mother's wedding.

John Zingrich stood with his cousin as best man and John Sanders seated the guests for his brother-in-law's wedding.

Gerald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Langenegger of San Francisco and the brother of Janet Sanders of South San Francisco and Charlotte Adams of Pacifica. Jefferson High School is his alma mater.

Moravec-Slattery

Our Lady of the Pillar Church in Half Moon Bay was the locale for the recent marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Slattery (Sandra Moravec) who are making their first home in Millbrae.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henery Moravec of El Granada who hosted a reception following the service at the IDES Hall in Half Moon Bay. Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Foster of Millbrae are the benedict's parents.

For her wedding, Sandra wore a white floor length gown with a high neck and lace detailing. Similar princess style gowns were selected by her attendants.

Pauline Wilson, the maid of honor, was dressed in purple, and bridesmaids Phyllis James, Jan Gerbo and Linda Lombardi were in violet.

Stephen asked John Gerbo to be his best man and guests were seated by Fred Scatena, Phil James and Tom Gerbo.

Half Moon Bay High School and Crestmoor High School are the bride and benedict's respective alma maters. She is the sister of Henery Moravec Jr. and Beverly Law, and he is the brother of Paul Slattery.

Students Wrote Script, Music

Sixteen fifth and sixth grade students of Pedro Valley School in Pacifica wrote the script and the music for their musical, "As the World Churns," presented in April and May.

Four of the students, Jennie Atkinso, Joey Battaion, Pam Lewis, and Paul Roark, represent the group on the radio program, "Teenagers Ask," which was broadcast yesterday on KQED radio. They discussed their ideas on pollution (the theme of the musical), and many of their original songs will be played. The teacher, Miss Janet Russell, directed the program on her own time.

Millbrae Pancake Breakfast

The Millbrae Lions will host their annual communitywide pancake breakfast at the downtown Millbrae parking lot on Magnolia Avenue and Hillcrest Boulevard in Millbrae, this Saturday, 8 a.m. to noon.

Menu includes "all you want to eat" of pancakes, Italian sausage, milk or juice and coffee. Most food was donated by suppliers so that almost all of the proceeds go to the Lions' various civic and youth projects.

New Eagle Scout for Troop 129

At a Court of Honor held recently at Hope Lutheran Church, Steve Matsunaga became troop 129's third Eagle Scout.

Scott Molver, the first Eagle, received a Bronze Palm for his Eagle Scout pin.

Promoted to the rank of Tenderfoot were Brian Barron, Steve Murray, Ken Rizzato and Dave Gunter. Paul Ellwein became Second-Class, and First-Class are Marc Brutschy, Guy Smith and John Cinti.

Mike Kinslow earned a Safety Merit Badge and was raised to the rank of Star.

Other boys who received Merit Badges: Dave Busenbark, Lifesaving; Bob Bussani, Pets; Mike Meschi, Cooking and Home Repairs.

The Scouts were congratulated by Scoutmaster Toby Kinslow for winning two blue ribbons and two red ribbons at the Boy Scout Camporee held at Gellert Park.

Each of the four patrols earned the "President's Award" ribbon for scoring 100 out of a possible 100 points for campsite inspection. The two assistant scoutmasters attending the event were Don Melius, Sr. and Perry Hardwick.

At the Council Campfire, on the last night of the Camporee, Marty Feil, Doug Barron and Don Melius, Jr. were tapped as candidates for the "Order of the Arrow."

A weekend was spent at Fort Cronkhite by Troops 129 and 148.

They took two five-mile hikes on which they saw Point Bonita Lighthouse and explored the Sea Coast Artillery Bunker.

Variety Of Restaurants For Luncheon Or Dinner

The major decision facing diners at San Bruno's new Garden restaurants, located on the lower level of the multi-million dollar Tanforan Park Shopping Center, is "which restaurant to choose." Seven distinctly different food establishments are found here, as well as a Swensen's Ice Cream Shoppe. The variety of lunches, dinners or snacks differs with each restaurant, which assures every member in your family something to their liking. A family atmosphere is stressed throughout the complex, with a "Come as you are" attitude prevailing . . . Lunches for one dollar? That's right — and a multitude of Millbrae and Burlingame businessmen have found them to be delicious at The Putter in Burlingame. From the opening hour of 11:30 a.m., customers can serve themselves a buffet luncheon for the low price of $1, Monday through Friday. Incidentally, check their cocktail prices, too . . . Palatable cuisine served in a sophisticated atmosphere is sure to make Graizano's one of San Francisco's best dining out spots. Frank Perez is the new owner.

Holiday Inn Dancing Tuesday Thru Saturday

Something new has been added at the Holiday Inn, South San Francisco. Owners Fred and Jerry Rapp decided there was a need for "dancable" music on the Peninsula. And presto, the spacious Lancer Lounge is now the scene of nightly dance crowds (Tuesdays through Saturdays) as the MacDonalds, Patty and Mac, provide the mellow sounds. The new music policy is designed especially for those who enjoy dancing to traditional favorites — no hard rock. To start off the evening right, enjoy a gourmet dinner in the adjacent Royal Hall dining room . . . Roast Prime Rib au Jus, from aged, choice beef, roasted slowly and full of flavor, is the specialty of the house on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays at the House of Troy restaurant in San Carlos. For light appetites, a ladies cut is also offered. Open seven days a week serving both luncheon and dinner (dinners only on Saturday and Sunday) . . . Chez Frederic, the new restaurant located in the Half Moon Bay Inn, is a gourmet's haven on the Coastside. The restaurant's success is a true reflection of culinary artist Frederic Hodge, whose reputation has spread from San Francisco (where Frederic once worked) clear down the coast. Considering the limited seating, reservations are suggested.

Jose Greco And Troupe Finocchio's Ringsiders

Ringsiding at Finocchio's night club for two shows, one recent night, were Jose Greco and his famous troupe of Spanish dancers. The Latin American dances of Estuardo and Rene De Carlo, both of whom have had Folklorico experience in Mexico, were especially applauded. The current show has a fine balance between the Latin rhythms, musical comedy numbers, comedy and dancing . . . Jim McCormack, new general manager of the Lord Fletcher Inn, in Atherton, takes great pride in his employees and their day-to-day operation of the restaurant. His desire for excellence is reflected throughout the Inn . . . The Leaning Tower's recent "face lifting" has given the South San Francisco restaurant a totally new look. Credit the Ercolis, Joe and Lou, for knowing exactly what they wanted for the new exterior and being able to convey their ideas to the architects . . . Weekend dinner tip: Prime Ribs of Beef as prepared by owner-chef Bruno Fava at his Bruno's restaurant in downtown San Mateo. Bruno is famous for steaks and a variety of Italian specialties, but it's his Prime Rib that catches the fancy of Friday and Saturday night diners.

Charlie Blackwell Trio Breaking All Records

Still breaking all records at the Villa Hotel is the Charlie Blackwell Trio, one of the smoothest sounding groups to provide dance sounds on the Peninsula. Veterans of the Nevada nitery circuit, the trio's lengthy stint in the plus Villa Lounge gives you an idea of their popularity with local music fans . . . Stickney's restaurant and bakery in San Mateo features one of our favorite desserts — Fresh Strawberry Pie. If it's one of your favorites, too, better take one home for the family table. Stickney's restaurants, a "foodmark" for numerous years, and under the banner of Adrian "Red" Stickney, rate with the country's best. This is a reservation suggestion for Father's Day (June 18) . . . Vince Licata, the world traveler, is back on the restaurant scene. Although he's been on the supervision job at Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant for more than a week, you Bright Lighter hasn't been able to sit him down long enough to enquire about his Eureopean vacation. Again we say: Vince lives the life "Riley" always wanted to . . . Nightly entertainment is now an added enticement in the comfortable lounge of Martinelli's Steak Pit. Dave Little, who has worked most of the top lounges and clubs on the local circuit, presides at the organ bar. It's almost impossible to stump him on a tune request.

Lovanne Heath

Summer time is camping out time for most youngsters. Whether it's to an organized camp or just a family outing, camping is an important and exciting part of growing up.

The children of the Friends Outside families are just as eager as any other child to get a taste of "roughing it" but they are less likely to have the required equipment, according to Mrs. Rudy Enberg.

The local unit of Friends Outside could make use of an unlimited number of sleeping bags and an appeal is going out clean and usable one to be used by children preparing for their very first camping trip. Persons wishing to know more about this appeal are asked to call the Friends Outside office, 661-6900.

The Wedding Bells Chime

The Pacifica home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Root was the setting for the reception which followed the recent marriage of their daughter, Jacqueline Ann, and Edward Allen Rice.

The couple exchanged vows at St. Benedict's Center in San Francisco. They honeymooned in Monterey and are now living in San Mateo.

Jacquline said her vows in her great grandmother's wedding dress which was fashioned with linen and lace. Each of her attendants was gowned in a lavender costume with tiny white flocked flowers.

Margie Root was her sister's maid of honor and Nancy Root, another sister, shared bridesmaid duties with Teri Langle of Daly City.

Patrick Pollard was best man for the bridegroom who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Rice of South San Francisco. Michael Root, the bride's brother, seated guests with John Baldwin.

The Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley was the setting for the reception which followed the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wayne Ragland.

The couple exchanged vows at St. Luke's Episcopal Church. After honeymooning in Canada, they are now living in San Bruno.

The new Mrs. Ragland is the former Kathryn Rose Williams. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Daly City. For her wedding, she chose a silk chiffon gown appliqued with lace at the sleeves, bodice, hemline and train. All of her attendants wore gowns of yellow chiffon over taffeta.

Janet Johnson of Seattle served as the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Cynthia Walkup of San Francisco and Gaye Abbey and Lynette Taylor of Daly City.

Best man duties were performed by James Ragland, the benedict's brother. Both are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Ragland of San Francisco. Ronald Ragland, another brother, seated guests with Tim Pappas and Brian Tinsley.

SSF Choraliers Present Old-Fashioned Songfest

South San Francisco Choraliers presented an old fashioned song-fest recently for the patients of the Cerro Gardens Convalescent Hospital in Daly City.

The program consisted of such old favorites as "Avalon," "Memory Lane," "Bye, Bye Blackbird," "Embraceable You," "My Wild Irish Rose," and many more and was enthusiatically received by all those in attendance. Many other songs were called for from the patients and the Choraliers, accompanied by Mrs. Lyna Back of Daly City were able to answer their requests.

Solo works for the evening were sung by Mrs. Roy Marlow, soprano, and Tersea Daupe, also, in a duet of "Whispering Hope."

Choraliers include many from Broadmoor, Colma, Daly City, San Francisco, and San Bruno, as well as South San Francisco.

The Choraliers did a repeat performance under direction of Roy Marlow, on June 1 at the new Rotary Plaza in South San Francisco.

A dinner honoring Mrs. Louis Masino, outgoing president of St. John's High School Ursuline Guild, was held Thursday.

Family Forum

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Turn on the oven and get out the mixer for I think you will be eager to start baking when you finish reading today's recipes.

This cake recipe was a finalist in the year's Bake-Off. It's a moist, tube-shaped cake with an easy, creative fudge-nut crunch on the bottom and a rich, creamy chocolate frosting.

Oddly enough, I don't have the name of this entry as my information on it came before the Bake-Off and the recipes were code numbered with no name. So I'll have to give it a name now.

CHOCOLATE-CRUNCH CAKE

1 package (18½ oz.) yellow cake mix
1 package (15.4 oz.) fudge frosting mix
one-third cup butter or margarine, melted
two-thirds cup chopped nuts (I used sliced almonds)
1 package (4 serving size) instant vanilla pudding mix
1 cup water
¼ cup cooking oil
3 eggs

Oven 350 degrees. 10-inch tube pan or 13x9-inch pan.

Generously grease and lightly flour 10-inch tube pan or 13x9-inch baking pan.

In small bowl, combine 1 cup dry cake mix (reserve remaining for cake), ½ cup dry frosting mix (reserve remaining for frosting) and one-third cup butter. Stir until crumbly; add two-thirds cup nuts. Press into bottom of prepared pan.

In large mixer bowl, combine the remaining dry cake mix, one package dry pudding mix, one cup water, one-fourth cup cooking oil and three eggs. Blend until moistened; beat 4 minutes at medium speed (portable mixer use highest speed). Pour over mixture in pan. (Place tube pan with removable bottom on cookie sheet to guard against spillover.)

Bake, 350-degree oven for 50 to 60 minutes (40 to 50 minutes for 13x9-inch baking pan) until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

Cool upright in pan for 30 minutes. Remove from tube pan. Cool completely. Invert so nut crust is on the bottom. Frost with remaining frosting mix prepared as directed on package decreasing water by 1 tablespoon.

With vacations almost here, it seems an ideal time to share a recipe for some traveling cookies.

When you take off on that car trip, some Trailside Cookies will make nutritious and delicious snacks. Made with Grape-Nuts, crumbled bacon, frozen concentrated orange juice, and other more conventional ingredients, these cookies are great with hot cocoa or coffee from a vacuum bottle.

TRAILSIDE COOKIES

1¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
two-thirds cup sugar
½ cup crunchy nut-like cereal nuggets
1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
¼ cup crumbled crisp bacon
½ cup butter or margarine
1 egg
2 tablespoons frozen concentrated orange juice

Combine the one and one-fourths cup flour, two-thirds cup sugar, half cup cereal and one teaspoon baking powder in mixing bowl; mix well. Add the fourth cup crumbled crisp bacon, half cup margarine, one egg and two tablespoons concentrate. Mix until well blended. Drop dough by rounded tablespoons onto ungreased baking sheets, placing cookies about 2 inches apart. Bake in 350-degree oven for 12 to 14 minutes, or until edges of cookies are lightly browned but cookies are still soft. Remove from baking sheets immediately. Makes about 2 dozen cookies.

In answer to a request I'd like to repeat this recipe for a different way to serve French bread.

ONION-SOUR CREAM FRENCH BREAD

1 loaf French Bread
1 can French fried onion rings
1 cube margarine
1 cup sour cream

Slice French bread into thick slices. Place the onion rings in a bowl and crush them a bit. Melt the cube butter and allow it to cool a bit, then combine with the cup sour cream. Dip the bread into the cream mixture and then into the onions. (You don't have to cover the slices with onions, just be sure that each slice has its share.)

Place on shallow baking sheet in a single layer and bake in 350-degree oven about 10 minutes or until crusty brown.

Serves 6 to 8.

Fashion Corsage From Fuchsias To Be Shown

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mueller from the San Francisco Branch of the American Fuchsia Society will be the featured speakers at the June meeting of the San Bruno Branch.

The meeting will be held on Friday, 8 p.m. at the Decima Allen School, 875 West Angus Ave., San Bruno. Mr. and Mrs. Mueller will demonstrate and teach the members how to fashion corsages from ribbon, wire and fuchsia blossoms brought from their own garden. Corsages, made by Mr. and Mrs. Mueller, meet exhibition standards.

San Bruno branch members, together with member of the Pacifica Branch, are planning a bus trip for June 11, to tour several fuchsia nurseries in Marin and Sonoma Counties. It is expected that members will acquire many fine fuchsia plants to add to their own gardens at home. The day will be climaxed with dinner at one of the Italian restaurants in Occidental.

At the June 9 meeting, the program will be followed by demonstrations of fuchsia culture by club members.

There will be a plant table and refreshments following the meeting. Visitors are welcome.

State Award to Brunans

The San Bruno Hilltop Gardeners' junior garden club, The Purple Violets, has been named fourth place winner in the civic beautification awards competition staged by the California Garden Clubs, Inc.

The members have also entered displays in the San Mateo Floral Fiesta, and the Spring Blossom and Wild Flowers Show in San Francisco. The girls made corsages for patients in the San Bruno Convalescent Home, and made Easter and Thanksgiving decorations for the patients, as well.

The $15 award won by the local junior gardeners will be used to buy plant materials to further their beautification projects.

First place in the civic awards competition went to Whittier Junior Hummingbirds, in Orange County. Runner-up honors went to the Silver Spur Garden Club of Rolling Hills and third place was won by the Santa Ana Junior Gardeners. The awards were presented by John Chiapelone, Burlingame Garden Center, president of the California Association of Nurserymen which sponsors the annual state-wide contest. Presentation of the awards was made at the California Garden Clubs' convention, held in Beverly Hills.

A TEST WAS MADE ON 2 IDENTICAL STANDING RIB ROASTS... LOOK AT THE RESULTS

GET UP TO 17% MORE MEAT for your food dollar! HERE'S HOW!

The roasts were cooked at different oven temperatures. One was cooked at 275 degrees...the other at 400 degrees as recommended by many cookbooks. They were cooked to the same degree of "doneness" using a meat thermometer. THE ROAST COOKED AT 275 DEGREES HAD 17% MORE MEAT THAN THE ONE COOKED AT 400 DEGREES due to less shrinkage. There was a difference in percentage of weight loss of 17%. Try it...for a more flavorful, tender and juicy roast, cook your next one at 275 degrees using a meat thermometer to eliminate guesswork. Nothing will save you more money than cooking at a low temperature.

Greenwood Wrote it

LAST WEEK WE pulled out an article Jefferson Elementary School District superintendent Frank L. Greenwood wrote in the February 1967 issue of California School Boards dealing with school problems of that time. We think it gives a particularly clear insight into Greenwood's problems of six years ago vis-a-vis those of today.

"IN ANOTHER district, we were subjected to a staff satisfaction survey by the CTA to determine whether or not a full scale ethics study should be done. Result, no study. Today, however, my present district is going through an ethics study first, then we'll find out if people are dissatisfied. I guess they feel the process had to be expedited in order to take care of all the requests being made.

"In Southern California, I was considered a liberal or a commie. In Northern California, a conservative. In the central part of the state, I was considered a nothing and many of my former board members agree with the latter. It was once erroneously reported that I had succumbed to a heart attack. Not one single inquiry was made to determine if it were true. As one teacher stated, 'We knew it was only a rumor because superintendents don't have hearts, they only have board members.'

"My work as a superintendent of schools in California has been both rewarding and frequently frustrating, but recently the latter seems to prevail. It is indeed ironic that at a time when the need for unity and singleness of purpose we find more divisiveness and greater cleavages than at any time in the history of American public school education. Teachers, board members, superintendents and politicians are going at each other as if there was to be no tomorrow, while the confidence that the people have or had in our institutions is being undermined.

"THE POSITION of the superintendent is becoming untenable as the school boards, and teachers both regard him as a member of the other group. In short, he is beginning to feel like a one-legged man in a tail-kicking contest. Conversations with other superintendents lead directly to the question of how long before I can retire and on what? If he is not seriously considering retirement or feels that he is too far away from it, he's beginning to eye the job of his district's business manager, or that the gap between the salaries of the head man and his assistants is being closed rapidly. The number two and three jobs are becoming more and more appealing as that of the superintendent becomes impossible.

"Anywhere you look you can see turmoil and controversy and while neither are strangers to the superintendent's house, the price of continuing as superintendent is becoming too high to pay, except for the dedicated crusader or the absolute fool.

"At the teacher level, he sees the C.T.A. and the A.F. of T. competing like Hollywood starlets in a beauty contest for the vote of the teachers to join their organization. In California our professional organization has won its place in the sun, but the A.F. of T. is determined to get out of the shadows by calling its opposition a company owned union, dictated to and controlled by those nasty old superintendents. Consequently, both the C.T.A. and the A.F. of T. are becoming more aggressive in their attempts to obtain or maintain members by outdoing the other.

"HISTORY TELLS us when two organizations, groups, etc., compete for the same memberships, the purposes, objectives and methods of both become so similar that it becomes impossible to distinguish one from the other. I believe this is now happening in California and so do many of my colleagues. Many superintendents feel that the Winton Act (collective bargaining, Magna Cum Laud) of California is but the first step towards the management vs. labor concept in the public schools of our state. Witness New York and Michigan.

"IF THIS WERE not bad enough, the politicians of this state have learned that the political mileage in California education is limitless. Therefore, it is no problem to get some freshman or sophomore legislator to introduce a bill that will do almost anything to or for someone at any given time. The result? We have a patch quilt system of education in California that could come apart at the seams unless those of us in education put down our knives and stop trying to cut each other's throat. Whether we like it or not, the enemies of public education, and I include those in the field, are standing in the wings honing their blades and licking their chops waiting to take in to their ranks the losers of every skirmish. The combined forces of enough losers can easily become an overwhelming force.

"The real frustration today comes from the fact that the leaders of every known professional organization are aware of this growing division and are even predicting it, and yet none will move to stop it. We're all too concerned with our own little empire, no matter how small. Every organization or group in the state or nation that feels it has something to gain by this division and dissention is pouring fuel on the fire so the ashes can be used for fertilizer in their own little garden of influence. In the arboretum of prejudice, jealousy, bias and self-interest we have become the staff of the many trees — the Saps.

"The division and growing separation within the educational family is far more discouraging to the average superintendent than the lash of the John Birch Society, the club of the taxpayers association or the reckless lance of uninformed legislators because we in the profession are responsible for this schism.

"I DO NOT speak for my brother superintendents, but for myself. I'm sick of the over-zealous defense of board prerogatives that are inconsequential to begin with and are usually delegated to the superintendent anyway.

"I'm tired of the endless philosophical debates of issues which are more imagined than real, which have been argued for centuries by greater minds than we now have among us and which could never be reconciled to begin with.

"I'm impatient with endless red tape, outmoded laws, and the voluminous amount of paper work involved in accounting for federal and state funds. To me, it makes little sense to spend 10 dollars protecting one. It has been said that the economy of the United States is based on the automobile. This is not true. It's based on paper work and carbon, thermofax, photostatic and Xerox copies of same.

"I'M DISGUSTED with the general public and the neophyte board member who have little, if any, understanding of the principles of representative government as they relate to the operation of a public school system.

"I'm amazed at the naivete of teachers who feel they can dictate major policy decisions to duly elected officials and appointed representatives, yet assume no responsibility for that decision. A school board can be removed or recalled for its actions; a superintendent can be demoted or fired for his recommendations, but a teacher has the protection of tenure and can only be removed for cause. Decision-making authority must carry with it answerable responsibility in direct proportion to the magnitude of the problem being acted on.

"I'M FEARFUL of the apparent willingness of untrained, and in some cases, uninformed legislators who feel that any educational problem can be solved by the simple passage of some piece of legislation authored by God knows who, and for what purpose. Education by legislative mandate will eventually put the schools in this state in an academic straitjacket from which there will be no escape.

"I RESENT the fact that over the past 10 years the jobs of superintendent has changed from educational leader and advisor to that of an expediter, politician and public relations man. The delegation of his authority to subordinates has so dissipated his influence on the educational program of the district that he no longer knows what's going on in the classroom or who is responsible for it.

"If, within the next few months, or next year, your superintendent should resign to assume a lesser role in the field of education, it will not be because of public criticism or the harassment of the taxpayers association. It will not be because of the threat of his wife to divorce him for desertion and child neglect, and most assuredly the antagonistic editorial policy of the local newspaper will have nothing to do with it. Routine trivia of this kind will never force him to such drastic action.

"HE WILL RESIGN because he sees his task as an impossible one, due to the complete division of the various groups in education which places the teachers in this corner — the administration in that corner — the board of trustees in another — and our legislators in still another. He will move aside in the hope that someone more capable and astute will replace him and solve the problems he has been unable to cope with in order that the children attending our schools will get a bigger piece of the action."

Ordered His First Cigar

On the evening of his seventeenth birthday, Gary Grimes ordered his first cigar, ate baked Alaska and talked of the two films in which he starred . . . and the only two in which he's ever appeared.

"I was 15 when I played a 15-year-old in 'Summer of '42' and 16 portraying a 16-year-old in 'The Culpepper Cattle Company.' In the sequel to 'Summer of '42,' called 'Class of '44,' I'll be 18 and playing my own age. So I guess you might say I'm being type cast."

The lucky young man who had only played a few minor parts on television and had done very little studying for his acting assignments, has a realistic attitude about his career in films.

"My mother has worked hard to help me and I think a lot was luck. I'm still in Burbank High School (he is doing a promotional tour for 'Culpepper' accompanied by his teacher) and am saving my salaries to attend either Santa Rosa or Sonoma State College. After that I want to study cinematography or directing at the UCLA film school."

But director Dick Richards calls him "a natural who didn't have to rehearse his scenes. He just went out and did them cold."

Grimes did have the disadvantage of working with a big name superstar in the dramatic story of a "green" and eager teen-ager who joins a cattle drive from Texas to Colorado in the post-Civil War era working as a cook's helper. He was surrounded by a first rate cast of experienced actors but newcomers when it comes to public recognition.

Richards went for authenticity in this interesting Western, rather than a big name as a box office lure.

"This is my first feature film and it's a test for other filmmakers working without a name actor. Oddly enough, the European market is based on our star system. We don't judge their films by name stars but they do ours."

"He'll trace the same pattern in casting with his next two films "Get the Police," and "The King of the Figure 8's." Like "Culpepper," he'll write his own script.

The boy Grimes plays grows up under the tutelege of trail boss Frank Culpepper ("an old Virginia name that is common in Texas) played by Billy "Green" Bush who was acclaimed for his portrayal of Jack Nicholson's pal in "Five Easy Pieces." His helping hands are also his adversaries and a tough, unprincipled quartet of gunslinging cowboys, Geoffrey Lewis, Bo Hopkins, Luke Askew and Wayne Sutherlin.

"I shot it in Sonora, Mexico and Sante Fe, New Mexico in the heat of summer, to get that tired, hot, dusty look. It gave a rough look to those big city actors I used. And I think I made a fine Western with one of the greatest gunfights ever seen on the screen. And I made it before 'The Cowboys' was shot."

Letters to the Editor

'Thanks'

To The Editor:

I would like to express my thanks and appreciation to Cub Pack 137. Our son has now graduated to Boy Scouting after spending three years as a Cub Scout. The saying that "Scouting rounds a guy out" is indeed true. Because parents cooperate and share in the responsibilities of planning a program and seeing that it is carried out has provided boys, ages 8 to 10, the opportunity to develop in character, leadership, self discipline, citizenship, mental and physical fitness and learning camping skills. Outings planned were: trips to Frontier Village, Wax Museum, Enchanted World, Marine World, football and baseball games, skating and swimming parties plus many more.

My thanks go especially to the Cubmaster, Gil Hulsmann, who has been asistant cubmaster for 7½ years and is now Cubmaster for the past year. Besides scouting, he works for PG&E as assoc. distribution engineer, active in Knights of Columbus, and member of the Holy Name Society, Good Shepherd Church, plus being father to 3 very active boys; Giles, age 12, is a Scout, Den Chief and assist. Patrol Leader of Troop 137, Tommy, age 10, is in Webelos and active in Judo with Johnny, age 6, coming up. Gil has a very understanding and helpful wife, Carol, who is a Den Mother for the past 3 years, secretary of Fairmont P-TA, library and teachers' aide at Fairmont School.

Cub Scouting is a family oriented organization and parent assistance is always needed. So again thanks to the Cubmaster, Gil Hulsmann, and all his committee members plus all the other parents who unselfishly give of themselves to contribute their time and effort towards making Cub Pack 137 such a fine growing experience for our son, Darryl.

'Kooks'

To the Editor:

In Samuel Chandler's column of May 10, 1972 ("Let Kooks Find Another Forum"), Mr. Chandler described his experience at the one board meeting he attended in the Jefferson Elementary School District. He referred to the audience (citizens and taxpayers of Daly City-Colma) as "wild eyed persons," "kooks," and "crackpots." Mr. Chandler was also a member of that audience on June 15, 1971, the particular evening of which he speaks.

It is difficult to imagine (or recall, since I also was in attendance) the meeting being so unorderly and the audience becoming so disruptive. Trustee Edward Tomasello was chairman of the board at that time and was quite capable of conducting an orderly and businesslike meeting.

In Mr. Chandler's column, it was suggested that each person should "keep quiet until he is invited to speak." May I remind him that the agenda for the June 15, 1971 meeting stated: "Receive comments from members of the audience relative to new state adoption of history textbooks (Discussion-Action)" and members of the audience wishing to address the board were required to submit a written request to the chairman of the board to speak.

In Mr. Chandler's opinion, it was more like a "riot" than a business meeting. All this, he said, was going on while the board was considering such mundane matters as the payment of vouchers. I'm very surprised taxpayer Chandler considers the payment of vouchers a mundane matter. If he will glance at his tax receipts he will notice that the greatest portion of his tax dollars goes to his local public schools. This year the income in the Jefferson Elementary School District is $8,938,645. While the annual district budget reflects the anticipated expenditures, the approval of payment of vouchers (or warrants) is how your elected officials actually spend your money. The effectiveness of a public school system greatly depends upon the adequacy of its financial support and the wisdom with which the finances of the district are managed. The school board faces a great responsibility in making decisions regarding finances. I'm therefore surprised Mr. Chandler would consider the payment of vouchers, the expenditure of his tax dollars, a mundane matter.

In regard to his statement that "they (the board members) have been elected to be a 'united' board and not ride favorite issues in opposite directions," I can only say that when I was seeking election to the school board my views were significantly different from those of the incumbent who was seeking re-election.

I was elected and the incumbent was re-elected. Did the voters wish me, once elected, to change my philosophy, views, and ideals to coincide with his, or his to coincide with mine? I'm sorry, Mr. Chandler, but to create a united school board at this time some members of the board would have to "sell out" their convictions. This my conscience will not allow me to do.

I would like to invite Mr. Chandler and the citizens of Daly City-Colma to attend school board meetings regularly and to express their views, opinions, needs, and desires. The public will support the programs and policies of the board of education only when it understands and appreciates them.

MRS. PETER FORRESTER,
Daly City.

Board meetings are now held the first and third Wednesdays of each month in the Council Chambers at City Hall. Study sessions called by the chairman will be held in the Board Room, 101 Lincoln Avenue, Daly City. The first meeting in the new location will be held June 7 at 8 p.m.

Samuel Chandler

Civil War's Doves, Hawks

There is a lesson for our times to be learned from the story of our country.

There were doves and hawks during the Civil War. There were young people rioting in the streets in an effort to end the war. There were conscientious objectors and draft dodgers. There was an enemy seeking to persuade the North to end the war without victory. "All we want is to be left alone," cried Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States.

THERE WERE SOLDIERS who complained about the conduct of the war. Among them was a general who resigned from the army and ran against the President in the 1864 election. A plank in his party's platform has a modern ring, ". . . justice, humanity, liberty and the public welfare demand that immediate efforts be made for a cessation of hostilities . . . to the end that, at the earliest practicable moment, peace may be restored . . ."

There were race riots during the Civil War and bigots. "Why attempt to thwart the designs of providence and make an equality between the white and black races?" cried Senator Saulsbury of Delaware. "Is it not time to stop such an insane policy . . . You have met disasters, defeat everywhere; and why? Because Sambo has been put up as the idol of our worship, and while you keep him as your god you will fail!"

In spite of all the riots, the hatreds, the bigotry, the oratory, the Civil War did not end and its course was not altered.

This is the lesson for our times. Strife and division at home do not end wars. Instead they lead to frustrations and breed greater strife and division.

For example, after years of being in opposition to the war and to racial equality, Senator Saulsbury was so frustrated he rose in the Senate Chambers to take part in a debate and in the heat of his argument shouted, "Mr. Lincoln is a weak and imbecile man; the weakest man that I ever knew in a high place; for I have seen him and conversed with him, and I say here, in my place in the Senate of the United States, that I never did see or converse with so week and imbecile a man as Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States."

IMMEDIATELY, NUMEROUS senators jumped to their feet to censor Senator Saulsbury, and the Vice-President got so angry he ruled that Senator Saulsbury was out of order. But the Senator would not sit down. ". . . if I want to paint a tyrant; if I want to paint a despot, a man perfectly regardless of every constitutional right of the people, whose servant, not ruler, he is, I would paint the hideous form of Abraham Lincoln. If that be treason. . . ."

He did not finish. The Vice-President called the Sergeant-at-Arms to take him out. A scuffle resulted with Senator Saulsbury screaming, "The voice of freedom is out of order in the councils of this nation."

But still the war continued and the violence grew greater and less effective. Finaly Senator Vallandigham, who was the leader of the "doves" in Congress called his times an era "when graveyards yawn, and hell itself breathes out contagion."

Abraham Lincoln learned that violence and rash measures lead only to more violence and do not stop wars. Thus he said, "My countrymen, one and all, think calmly and well upon this whole subject . . . If there be an object to hurry any of you in hot haste to a step which you would never take deliberately that object will be frustrated by taking time; but no good object can be frustrated by it (calm thought)."

Civil Disorder No Stranger

Telegraph Avenue, Stanford University, Union Square, Vallejo, San Francisco State. These and other place names remind us that civil disorder is no stranger to Northern California. Because of this, the area forms an appropriate workshop to study the manner in which the judicial system has handled the unique problems associated with civil disruption.

In spite of vast news coverage of street disorders and occasional theatrical trials, the public has little understanding of the constitutional, procedural, and practical problems in this field. After the riot is over, public interest lags, and the overwhelming problems of administration of justice are given scant attention. Yet it is in the daily grist before the courts that America must reconcile the challenge of mob action with constitutional government.

Consideration of the anatomy of violence and group action readily suggests the imposing problems such events thrust upon a system of justice that is devoted to the concept of individual rights. To begin with, the large number of people involved makes it almost impossible for enforcement officers to identify individuals and the nature of individual actions. A great deal happens in a very short span of time. Which of three thousand milling people committed criminal acts or incited others to such acts?

The mob itself, moreover, often takes on its own life. Caught up in the anxiety and excitement of the moment, many of the people involved act as a group or unit. But when it comes to proper application of justice, each man must be measured by his own involvement and not that of the group.

Some seek the answer to riots by searching for a mastermind or leader, who, with a few chosen conspirators, planned the whole thing. In most cases, such simplistic analysis will not bear scrutiny, as the usual bizarre pattern of riotous activity defies the concept of orderly planning.

The pattern follows a familiar course: a crowd gathers for lawful purposes. Its members exercise their rights of free assembly and free speech. Included in the crowd are a few people who seek violence and through words and deeds incite others. Suddenly a part of the crowd (but just what part?) becomes a mob. Usually the vast majority of those present react to this turn of events with revulsion, but are caught in time and place with those who actively violate laws.

Police officers have an almost impossible job in distinguishing offenders from the innocent. They must act reasonably under emergency circumstances to quell the disturbance. Their plight is understood by most citizens. But condoning of unusual police action aimed at the suppression of mass disorders must not be confused with any attempt to justify unconstitutional and summary judicial methods.

Thus, in a nation of laws, the rights of indvidual defendants arrested in riot situations are of unusual importance. The procedural rights of the accused must be carefully protected.

Memories of Walter Mails

Walter Mails, The Great, The Duster, retired from the Giants' speaker's bureau last week, and it was not a joyous occasion for kids or newspapermen; for kids because probably no athlete in America ever talked to so many of them so effectively about the value of a good education and the greatness of baseball, or let so many of them in ball parks free; and for newspapermen because Mails never turned one of them away without their staple — a story.

In the 10 years we've been filling this space, for example, we've devoted eight full columns to him, countless short items, and have based several free lance magazine articles on leads he gave us.

What follows is a sort of compendium of the best we've written of Mails — stories told by and about him, memorable quotes, and philosophical musings.

OUR FAVORITE QUOTES:

"Show me one guy in San Francisco education (an administrative person) who's really interested in baseball and I'll eat that damned building on Van Ness without salt and pepper!"

"There are no baseball writers left. All they are is critics."

(On Horace Stoneham) "He does more for charity and kids silently than a lot of these pop-off owners do combined publicly."

(On Little League) "I started Little League (in San Francisco) . . . and after I resigned as commissioner, it wasn't working out so smoothly, so they asked me to return. I told them . . . only if (they) gave me carte blanche . . . and my first year back on the job I forfeited 35 games because homemakers became troublemakers . . .

"They're (parents) more valuable shagging foul balls and selling hot dogs and soothing their keds when they lose than they are managing and umpiring from the left field grandstands. . . .

"Little League is fine if kept in perspective. The main thing is to keep the kids off the streets, not boost their parents' egos . . .

"We've kept the parents off the field in San Francisco, and made the kids — and parents — realize that Little League is a game and not the most important thing in the world."

(On baseball men who knock the game) "One of baseball's big troubles is that you've got too many guys in the game knocking it. The majority of baseball players, when they're through in baseball, never come near the park. If it wasn't for baseball, most of them would never have been able to make a living. And most of them are making livings after they retire only because of baseball, because people know their names. Look at all these guys who think they're entertainers, for instance, and think they can make a bundle outside the game on their other 'talents.' Why, if they weren't baseball players they couldn't make a living playing organs and banjos and singing . . ."

(On youth programs of other teams) "Some of these clubs wait until the weatherman predicts a miserable night, then advertise for a week before that they're going to let a group of orphans in for nothing.

"When game time comes, if the kids can prove they're orphans by producing their parents' death certificates, they're let in and seated in the farthest corner of the bleachers . . . At the seventh inning stretch, the public address man announces in a trembling voice that 12 orphans have been let in free and would the fans kindly give them a big hand for having the guts to show up on such a lousy night . . . and this club brags all year about letting in 12 orphans. That's not the way we do things around here. I don't believe in exploiting kids for cheap publicity purposes."

(On today's players) "There's more talent around than ever before, and fewer prospects."

than ever febore, and fewer prospects."

OUR FAVORITE STORIES

Mails loves to tell about when he was the highest paid player in the Pacific Coast League with Oakland in 1924 ($20,000), won 24 games and was sold to St. Louis, then managed by Branch Rickey.

Mails told Rickey he wanted a $5,000 raise, and Rickey explained to him that Rogers Horsnby himself was making only $25,000 and that the great first baseman Jimmy Bottomley, was making just $5,000. "Can you give me a good reason," said Rickey, "why you're ntitled to a $5,000 raise?

Replied Mails, "First of all I'm not interested in what any other ball player on your club is getting. I'm looking out for Walter Mails, and that's all I care about. Secondly, if I report to St. Louis, I have to maintain a second home. Thirdly, I won 24 games!"

Rickey calmly replied, "Well, you're right." Mails got the raise.

Rickey is one of Walter's favorite subjects. He likes to tell of the first team meeting he ever sat in on. Rickey read a letter from a fan who felt the Cards should win the pennant that year. "Now," announced Rickey, "when I get 25 players who can hit, run, think, pitch, slide like I want them to, I will win the pennant."

And then Rickey motioned to outfielder Heinie Mueller. "You see that man there, gentlemen? He built a chicken coop in his basement, and he had to tear it down to get out into the yard, because it wouldn't fit through the basement doors. Now there's a man I signed for $3,000 a year for three years. Do you want me to win a pennant with dummies like that?"

Once, when Chub Feeney was Giant vice-president, he berated Walter for allowing a Booster's Club luncheon scheduled on a date when the Giants had just flown in from a road trip and would only be able to get two hours' sleep. Mails eyed Feeney disdainfully and said, "Hell, Chub, in my day I wouldn't even have bothered to go to bed!"

And then there was the time when Walter, after having a 22-10 record the previous year, was sent a contract by Seals' owner Dr. Charles Strubb calling for a $1500 cut in salary. Walter sent the contract back with a note: "Dear Dr. Strubb, I'm glad my record wasn't 10-22. You'd have sent me a bill."

WHEN MAILS was baseball coach at St. Mary's, he and football coach Clipper Smith gave talks one day at a ladies' luncheon. When it was over the chairman of the entertainment committee tried to slip a $10 bill to Mails for his and Smith's expenses. Mails graciously declined the offer, and suavely told the lady about how it had been their pleasure.

The lady then joyously made an announcement telling of the generosity of both Mails and Smith.

"Wasn't that wonderful of them," she said giddily. "Now we can save this and add another $10, and next year we can get better speakers."

Anyone asking Mails what is wrong with baseball will get a cold, hard stare, and a snappy, "Nothing!" But anyone asking him what one thing he would do for modern baseball if he had the power, would get the reply, "I'd put more color into the game."

He recalls the days when teams had longer infield practices and put on regular pre-game shows for the public; the so-called "field days," when competitive pre-game events such as circling bases, fungo hitting, long distance hitting, barrel throws, etc., were big fan attractions. He laments the apparent passing of the "colorful" player.

I DON'T THINK the lack of color is the fault of the owners or commissioners. I don't think they'd stop players from injecting a little humor into the game. I think it's often the fault of the players. They all want to be dignified businessmen today. And it's oftern the fault of umpires who feel that any levity in a game tneds to show them up."

Mails would like to see comics like Nick Altrock ("He was the homeliest man I ever saw . . . but people loved him) and Carl Sawyer back in the game; exhibitionists like Jackie Price ("He could hit a baseball standing on his head further than I could standing on my feeet"), and baseball characters, such as Foghorn Murphy.

And he chuckles at such modern innovations as platooning. "The four toughest hitters I ever faced were Harry Heilmann, Babe Ruth, George Sisler and Ty Cobb. Please note that I pitched left-handed and that three of those four gentlemen named batted left-handed."

But Mails still thinks that baseball in any shape or form is the greatest game ever invented.

Racanelli Athlete of Year

By CHRIS STAVE

Terra Nova High senior John Racanelli seems almost too good to be true, like the old-time boys' fiction heroes who spread their amazing good deeds across countless pulp pages in happier times.

Nevertheless, the Times Prep Athlete of the Year has done it all.

Last fall he played quarterback and defensive back for the Tigers, leading them to their first-ever first division football finish. He ran the option well, and was a sharp passer. He was captain of the team and its most valuable player.

He set Tiger grid records for most passes, most completions, most placekicking points and best punting average. He was second team All-North Peninsula League at defensive back.

The 6-2, 185 pounder was even more successful at basketball. He was the team captain and most valuable player. He led the NPL in scoring — 299 points for a 21.4 per game average — and in rebounding.

He set Terra Nova records for most points in a season, most points in a game, and most rebounds in a season. He was a unanimous All-NPL pick at forward.

And he didn't even begin his best sport till spring.

Racanelli is about the hottest prep baseball talent going in the county. One Mid-Peninsula League coach who faced him early in the season said, "In my five years here I've never seen a better right-handed pitcher."

Racanelli, the league MVP two years in a row, did not always receive outstanding support when he was on the mound, which accounts for a disappointing 4-4 record.

But there has seldom been a more deceptive mark. Racanelli had a 1.20 earned run average and struck out 127 batters in just 83 innings.

Since he was also leading the Tigers at the plate (.324), he played outfield whenever he wasn't on the mound.

There is little doubt among coaches that he is the premier pitcher on the Peninsula. There is apparently little doubt among scouts and recruiters either.

He has been offered full-ride scholarships at two of the country's top baseball schools, USC and Arizona State. He also has full offers from two other schools (one in football) and many more offers of partial aid.

He shouldn't have too much trouble academically if he takes one of the scholarships. He carried a 3.88 grade point average (nearly straight A) at Terra Nova, and has been picked to the Helms Foundation Scholar-Athlete Hall of Fame.

Rancanelli isn't sure that he'll go on to college ball; he'll wait and see first how high he goes in the baseball draft before he makes any plans.

His coaches are sure he'll succeed no matter what he chooses to do. Says basketball mentor Bud Bresnahan, "In basketball, as in football, we geared our offense around John. And despite the fact that we had a mediocre season, John's contribution and his play around the league was a high point of the year."

Baseball coach Marty Coil adds more plaudits: "John is the type of athlete a coach can have nothing but respect for. He puts forth 110 per cent effort, both in practice and in games. He's the first one to praise his teammates and the last to complain when things don't go right.

"He's just a super kid."

A super kid, indeed.

There were nine finalists in the Athlete of the Year lists. That group was narrowed to three. The two runners-up to Racanelli were Jim Watts of Menlo-Atherton and Dale Curry of San Mateo, both seniors.

Watts was a standout performer in football, basketball and track. Watts prefers basketball, where he was perhaps the most dominant player in the SPAL. But he is being sought as a football player, too — 6-6 receivers don't grow on trees.

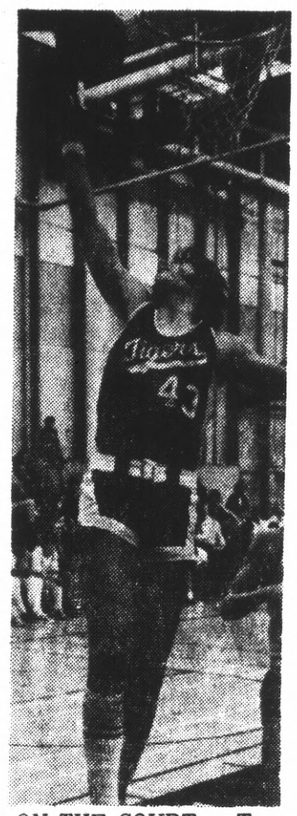
Curry was a superb natural athlete. One college coach and recruiter, watching Curry play linebacker, said "He dominates, absolutely. He may be a little light (6-2, 185) but he's the kind of player we look for." Curry was recruited by several schools for his football talent, and ended up signing a letter of intent to UCLA.

He was also a standout wrestler; an injury suffered at the end of wrestling season kept him from competing as a weight man in track, where he showed good potential.

The other finalists were George Ama of Crestmoor, Clark Anderson of Burlingame, Ervin Brown of Carlmont, Scott McWhirter of Hillsdale, Frankie Reyes of Half Moon Bay and Ken Smith of Jefferson.

Ama was a three-letter man at Crestmoor and all-MPL in football and baseball. Terry Christman, his baseball coach, says, "George may be the best all-around athlete the school has ever had."

Anderson was solid in baseball and a reserve in basketball. In football, he was a main factor in the Panthers' MPL title.



ON THE COURT — Terra Nova's John Racanelli scores from the court. The 1971-72 All-NPL basketball player led the conference in scoring with a 21.4 per game average.

Increased Tempo DC Boys' Baseball

The Daly City Boys Baseball league, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Division, has increased in excitement and tempo as the leagues move towards their ultimate conclusions. The Sixth Grade National Division has caught the eye of every baseball followers in the city.

Sixth Grade National League

In the Sixth Grade National League, the Holy Angels Godfathers edged the P.A.L. Tigers, 2 to 1 at Westmoor Park. The Hunts Teamsters have now won six in a row after dropping two of their first three games to go into a 3 way tie for third place.

The Teamsters kicked up a ruckus as they downed the P.A.L. Colts 6 to 3 and they then came back to defeat the hapless P.A.L. Tigers 13 to 0. Ray Morton threw a no-hitter and his teammates collected 16 hits in their big win over the Tigers. The L.B.Y.A Stompers crushed the Bugs 3 to 1 in an unexpected upset. This was a great defensive game on the part of both teams. The O.L.P.H. Tigers were winners in both halves of their double header on Saturday. In the first game they defeated the O.L.M. Mets 5 to 3 thanks to a double by Dago Salangsang and singles by Dana Ynostroza, Tim Thompkins and a screaming triple by Joe Bender. The big battle for second place was decided in the second game as O.L.P.H. squeaked past the AAA Crusaders 3 to 2. This game was tied at 1 to 1 in the sixth inning.

In the seventh, Dana Ynostroza hit a 2 bagger which drove in the typing run and scored on an overthrow to secure the victory. The P.A.L. Colts held on to a tie for third place by kicking the Stompers 14 to 7. Randy Perez, Louis Tinsley and Gary Howard all collected 2 hits for the winners. Bill Kannaugh struck out 10 batters in recording his 3rd victory. John Rodrigues struck out seven batters and got 2 hits in leading the P.A.L. Bugs to a 3 to 1 victory over the O.L.M. Mets. In other games the St. Andrews Scots won two big victories to hold on to their first place lead by ½ game over O.L.P.H.

The Scots defeated the AAA Crusaders 9 to 3 and then downed the Holy Angels Godfathers 19 to 4.

In last week's action the LBYA Cougars defeated AAA by a score of 14-5. Blake Chong, Time Howard, John Sangiacomo, Jeff Jones, and Dave Baralich led LBYA to this victory.

Eighth Grade Highlights

In Eighth Grade action, the LBYA Mustangs rode rough shod over the St. Thomas More Pilots 20 to 4. The OLM Wildcats and the St. Andrews Scots Blues fought to a 7-7 deadlock in a game that was eventually called due to darkness. The Scotts were behind 7 to 1 in the last inning and then they came up with 6 runs to tie the score. Chris Laing threw a 2 hitter at the St. Thomas More Pilots as the PAL Caulley Litho Liners coasted to a 21-4 victory. The LBYA Pistons shutout the St. Andrews Blues 14-0. Roy Wockmetooah went 7 strong innings for the winners. Wockmetooah had a no hitter until the last inning when Papelbaum got the only hit of the game for the Blues. The PAL Caulley Litho Liners edged the Hunts Team 4-2 in a real close ball game. Pete Eliopoulos and Kevin Carew combined to hold Hunts to 1 hit and 2 runs. Rick Wyatt led the hitting with a single and a double. The Liners then came back to defeat St. Andrews Greys 10-2. In a closely contested game, the Hunts Donuts Team defeated the LBYA Mustangs 3-2. The LBYA Pistons shut out the St. Thomas More Pilots 17-0 to conclude this weeks action.

D.C. Soccer Club Loses in Dublin

Concluding a successful season the boys from the Westlake International Soccer Club on Sunday May 21 played at Dublin, the youth soccer city of Northern California, whose youngsters in recent years have taken many state honors.

A relaxed picnic atmosphere prevailed as families of the boys sat on the edge of a regular soccerfield and watched their sons in action. Getting acquainted with the coaches from Dublin, the Westlakers plan to invite them to Daly City in the fall and show them that the local community wants soccer at its best.

RESULT OF GAMES: Under 8: Dublin 5, Westlakers 0.

With only eight members of their regular team able to make the trip, the Westlakers with help from their older comrades played well defensively against a well-knit team from Dublin. Despite the five goals scored against his team, goalie Jason Bruni made numberless good saves and was very impressive.

Fullbacks Mike Kennedy and Paul Abrahamsohn, though undersized, held off the continuous Dublin attacks with quick interceptions and dogged tackling. At forward Francois Martin at the wing showed speed, while Steve Suvaco was extremely strong in cutting loose. Afer a third quarter when all the scoring occured, the Westlakers came to life in the final period but were unable to score.

Under 10: Dublin 2, Westlakers 0.

An interesting, fast-paced game, the first Dublin goal came on a defensive error. However, this inspired goalie Chris Willsey, who played well the rest of the game and as usual saved a penalty. The Westlakers' defense played strong with fullback Dave Inocencio and Chrise Lonner clearing.

At halfback it was Kirk Lee who impressed with ball control and quickness. Teresa Abrahamsohn, right halfback and only girl on the team played skillful, always passing accurately.

At left Jimmy Kennedy broke loose several times, as did Larry Beal as outside right. But neither was able to center the ball for the inside forwards, especially Freddie Gold.

Under 12: Dublin 2, Westlakers 2.

An exciting game all the way. Louis Navarro broke through the middle early to put the Westlakers ahead. A second goal was scored by Mike Teichner on the right wing as his strong cross bounced into the net. However, Dublin now pressed strongly and scored twice in the second half to tie the game.

Louis Navarro once more broke free but shot hastily and missed. For the Westlakers fullbacks Jeff Gold and Chris Lonner did a fine job. At halfback it was Kirk Lee and Ralph Joshua who stood out. All the rest of the team also made a great effort to battle a speedy and skillful opponent to a draw.

The Westlakers and Dublin coaches and senior boys put on the usual exhibition bout to let the youngsters see that soccer skills are not lost with age as long as you stay in condition. And that speed is not as important as ball control and quick thinking on your feet.

The club also recently played a series of exhibition soccer matches against Santa Rosa Kickers, the top soccer club in Sonoma County.

This first trip north was made by some 50 local boys, their league coaches and many enthusiastic supporters cossisting of mothers and fathers and family friends, close to a hundred altogether.

Playing on a well-kept grassy soccerfield in pleasant weather the Daly City boys, aged from seven through twelve proved a credit to their coaches and parents by their exemplary behavior on and off the field.

During the noon interval when everyone picnicked together at the edge of the soccerfield, the Santa Rosa contingent got acquainted with the Daly City travellers. The Santa Rosa coaches and club officials then expressed the wish to come to Daly City in early fall for a set of return games to cement the mutual friendship between soccer players, coaches and parents.

Results of games at Santa Rosa: Under 10: Santa Rosa 3, Westlakers 0.

Santa Rosa established itself early as the stronger, more experienced team. However, the Westlakers' defense with Dave Inocencio and Greg Anawalt as fullbacks — while Larry Hanson swept down the middle — made the Santa Rosa boys work for their goals. Goalies Chris Wiilsey, and later Eddie Horn made some good saves.

OLM moved a step closer to the crown in the 5th Grade National League as they clobbered OLPH by a score of 19-8. John Grealish, Buzzy Locke and Terry White helped OLM to this important victory. White had a big triple for OLM, while Grealish's pitching held OLPH for three innings. Locke played outstanding defense for OLM and also contributed a great bunt single in the OLM victory.

The Holy Angels Purple People Eaters remained in second place by defeating the LBYA Lions by a score of 12-1. Paul Erickson's pitching was the important factor in the Holy Angels victory. Erickson pitched his finest game of the season as he constantly baffled the LBYA batters.

The PAL Cardinals pulled a minor upset in the Fifth Grade National League by tieing the undefeated OLM team by a score of 5-5. The entire Cardinal team played an outstanding game.
